BJP HOLDS THE EDGE IN UTTAR PRADESH

For the first time in over three decades Uttar Pradesh is all set to show a difference by re-electing the party in power. The BJP holds the edge in the 2022 Assembly elections.

The BJP and allies are set to win between 220 to 240 seats in the 403 member House. The Samajwadi Party and its allies would win 140 to 160 seats. The BSP would get 12 to 18 seats. The RLD (SP ally) would get 8 to 12 seats and the Congress between four to eight seats.

The BJP while retaining power in India's largest state, it would be dropping around 90 seats of the 312 seats it won in 2017. The Samajwadi Party even as it is being asked to be in the Opposition once again, is increasing by 300 per cent.

While looking at the UP election scenario, this time it does appear to be a bipolar contest - BJP versus SP. But on the ground the reality is the BSP is having a strong presence. The bottom line is that the BSP is suffered in the perception battle though the reality is otherwise. A case in point is that their core vote base - the Jatavs - continues to be with the party.

Hyderabad based political research organisation, Peoples Pulse, and satellite news channel, K News India, conducted a post-poll survey in Uttar Pradesh after each phase of election.

Peoples Pulse conducted the post-poll survey in 45 Assembly constituencies. The Probability Proportional to Size methodology was adopted. Five polling stations were selected in each Assembly constituency by systematic random sampling method. A sample of 20-25 voters were selected from each polling station with representation reflecting the situation on the field.

The main findings of the survey has the BJP standing well with around 240 seats, with the SP a good 80 seats behind.

Coming to the vote share the BJP is leading over the SP by just 3 per cent. The BSP is polling around 16 per cent and the Congress is at 7 per cent.

It is important to mention that in any survey a five per cent plus or minus error needs to be factored in both the projection of seats and vote share.

On the issue of choice for the next chief minister, the incumbent Mr Yogi Adityanath is leading the pack with 38 per cent of the respondents preferring him. The SP's Mr Akhilesh Yadav comes next with 33 per cent. The BSP's Ms Mayawati is down at 16 per cent. Mrs Priyanka Gandhi is at six per cent.

The main election issues were price rise 31 per cent, unemployment 28 per cent, MSP 11 per cent, Lakhimpur Kheri and Covid among others. The other issues that are adding impact is the payment of dues to sugarcane farmers by sugar factories.

The stray cattle issue 19 per cent has taken immense proportion as farmers are at their wits end to protect their crop from.

The biggest thing in the BJP favour, despite a sharp fall in the projection of seats, is that the voter is in no mood to dethrone Mr Yogi Adityanath. On the contrary, the voter is well disposed towards his government because of beneficiaries by government schemes (La Bharati), 'double ration', and a good law and order scenario. The last feature has won the BJP a lot of support from the women voters. Further he is largely seen as non-corrupt.

Conversely, he is blamed for having a soft eye towards his fellow caste persons, the Thakurs to the extent that his administration is dubbed as 'Thakurwadi'. Also, the Brahmins, who form the core vote of the BJP, feel that they are being neglected. Also, Mr Adityanath is described as being inaccessible towards even his own party MLAs and is found to be arrogant.

Mr Akhilesh Yadav is appreciated for his spirited campaign and holding his ground, individually and also politically, against a powerful party and a formidable rival in Mr Adityanath. It is for this reason that the SP would register a remarkable increase in seats even though it falls short of a majority. Also, he is said to have displayed maturity in stitching together alliances with other parties. Also, he has kept his family aside to sidestep the accusation of 'parivarwadi'.

On the flip side he is clearly overburdened as he is the only campaigner for not just the SP, but for the entire alliance. Also, he has under performed as the Leader of the Opposition and got his act together only around a year before the elections. Despite his spirited campaign, he has not succeeded enough to win the confidence of the non-Yadav OBCs.

This election is certain to go down in history for the voter not getting swayed by any divisive or sectarian rhetoric. The BJP might well have tried with the 80-20, Hijab issue, but the mood of the UP voter was basically far removed from Ayodhya or the Kasi corridor.

The Muslims on the other hand refused to get into anything or say anything that would lead to the process of polarisation. In 73 Assembly constituencies they constitute over 30 per cent of the electorate. Their clarity would be telling – they just want to vote to any party on the field that is capable of defeating the BJP. The MIM factor is next to nothing.

The Congress led by Mrs Priyanka Gandhi might not be showing any tangible results and the reason for it is a good campaign, but with a poor narrative. What would keep them enthused is that they have managed to prepare the ground for the 2024 Lok Sabha elections.

The 'pata hua voters', which means the less dominant OBCs or the numerically weak OBCs, would be deciding the outcome of UP 2022. The non-Jatav Dalits are adding to these numbers. They have found that they are at the receiving end as the dominant OBCs and Jatavs are taking a major portion of the pie. The other reason is that the BJP noticing their mood has worked on them assiduously and consistently and that effort is paying off.
